Workshop

Adolescent Mental Health

From the Cradle to Young Adulthood: A Developmental Perspective

Monday 7 October 2019

Weetwood Hall Estate, Otley Road, Leeds, LS16 5PS
9am Registration, 9.30am Welcome and 4.30pm, Close

This course addresses the topic of adolescent mental health from a developmental perspective. It takes as its starting point early infancy mapping out theoretical and clinical constructs that inform our understanding of adolescence and young adulthood. There are major guidelines and reports that are utilised during the talk from the National Institute for Health and Care Excellence (UK) and the World Health Organisation.

After attending this course delegates will be able to...

- To have a developmental understanding of adolescent mental health
- To have a greater understanding of the developmental trajectory of mental disorder
- To consider ways in which this influences clinical or community practice
- To reflect upon theory, practice and research and how these interact

ABOUT OUR SPEAKER:

Dr Terence Nice is Programme Director (Psychotherapy) at the University of Kent and a Visiting Lecturer at Regent's University London. He trained as a psychoanalytic psychotherapist at the University of Kent before going onto the MA in infant observation at the Tavistock Clinic, London. He has always been fascinated by early developmental experiences and how these impact upon adolescent and adult psychopathology. Since completing his doctoral thesis 'Troubled Minds and Scarred Bodies' in 2012, his research focus has been upon capturing and understanding the complex intentional and motivational systems that characterise self-harming and suicidal behaviours in young people. He contributed to the development of the Mind and Body Programme, winner of the UK Public Mental Health and Well-being award (2017). He is a member of the UKCP Research Faculty Committee, a practicing psychotherapist and an active researcher in the NHS. He has published papers on self-harm and attempted suicide in young people and is a reviewer for the British Journal of Psychotherapy.
