

Borderline Personality Disorder

Tackling Complexity and Offering Hope: Making Sense of BPD

Monday 21 September 2020

Clayton Hotel, 7 City Walk, Leeds, LS11 9AT

9am Registration, 9.30am Welcome and 4.30pm, Close

The session will enable practitioners to gain a broad understanding of borderline personality disorder (BPD), from a wide variety of perspectives, and through this deliver better care and services to individuals, who are often excluded by virtue of their presentation and diagnosis. Emphasis will be placed on what BPD looks like in practice, the challenges posed to services, how leadership and management theory can be applied to working with people with BPD and how to use phrasing and formulation to achieve better outcomes for both clients and services.

After attending this course, delegates will be able to:

- Develop and understanding of the importance of therapeutic optimism and hope, its applicability in BPD and how to achieve this.
- Translate leadership and management principles to clinical work with people with BPD
- Understand the core elements of the disorder and trauma based approaches to treatment.

About Our Speaker: Dr Fiona Mason MB BS FRCPsych

Fiona Mason trained in General Psychiatry at the Royal Free Hospital, London, and went on to specialise in Forensic Psychiatry at the Maudsley Hospital, subsequently becoming a Lecturer in Victimology and Forensic Psychiatry at the Institute of Psychiatry. During this time she worked within the Traumatic Stress Service at the Maudsley. She next worked as a Consultant at Broadmoor High Secure Hospital before taking up a post at St Andrew's Healthcare. In both organisations she was responsible for developing services for women, her clinical work focusing on those with a diagnosis of personality disorder.

Fiona now works independently as a clinical advisor, coach, leadership trainer, lecturer and medico-legal expert. Fiona is a recognised leader in the field of women's mental health and healthcare leadership, and regularly advises, teaches and publishes on both subjects.
