

Understanding Language Deprivation in CAMHS

Tuesday 29th June 2021

Virtual Event via Zoom

12.15pm Online Registration, 12.30pm Welcome and 4.30pm, Close

The language deprivation pandemic is a hidden one that effects approximately 70% of deaf children in the UK, and been around in the early 19th Century, yet we are still learning about the lasting effects. It is considered a safeguarding concern, and everyone has responsibility to abolish this practice. The purpose of this talk is to raise awareness of this matter, within the field of mental health. I will be talking about the principles of language deprivation, signs and symptoms of language deprivation and sharing some strategies of how to work with these children. I will also be sharing the effects of not being given a complete language on the child's brain and development, including their mental wellbeing.

After attending this course, delegates will be able to...

- Understand the principles of Language Deprivation
- Able to identify signs and symptoms of Language Deprivation
- Understand strategies for working with deaf children with Language Deprivation

About our speaker:

Rachael Hayes is the Deaf Service Consultant in National Deaf Child and Adolescent Mental Health service (National Deaf CAMHS). She has worked with deaf children, families and young people since 2000 and is a social worker by background. Her first language is British Sign Language and is a strong advocate for the deaf community. Her work within the service is mainly around shaping service models, influencing change, is involved with research in an advisory capacity and has a complex caseload. She is also involved strategically for the national service, advising on many issues pertaining to deaf children and their families. She has been instrumental in driving the service forward to consider current research and practice around language deprivation.
