Delegates will focus on the impact of early trauma on the development of the brain, and a child's attachment patterns. You will look at how the brain development manifests into behaviours seen at home and the classroom, and the possible ways to intervene to manage these. The purpose of the talk will be to develop your skills in identifying the neurological impact of trauma and to identify strategies to help children in what ever setting they encounter them.

After attending this course delegates will be able to:

- Identify the symptoms of trauma in a child

- Be able to identify the most helpful intervention (referral pathway for them)
