

Antipsychotics Key Issues in Safety and Tolerability

Tuesday 3 November 2020

Virtual Event via Zoom

5.45pm Registration/Login, 6.00pm Welcome and 8.00pm Close

It is well known that people with a diagnosis of schizophrenia have poorer physical health outcomes than the general population. Antipsychotics have important effects on some of these parameters such as weight, blood glucose and lipids. NICE guidance covers what physical health parameters should be monitored when these medications are used. It is important that health professionals are aware what monitoring is required with these medications and if problems develop how you choose between the different antipsychotics.

After attending this course delegates will be able to:

- Know how to monitor and deal with the physical health side effects of antipsychotics
- Know how the antipsychotics differ in terms of side effects

About our speaker:

Michael Dixon, GPC 2050907, MRPharmS 1001233, MCMHP, MFRPSI, Lead Pharmacist for Medicines Information/R&D/Audit, Leeds and York Partnership NHS Foundation Trust, has worked for Leeds and York Partnership NHS Foundation Trust since 2002. He has worked on general adult psychiatry wards since 2008. Before that rotated round various ward specialities including psychiatric intensive care, low secure forensic psychiatry, older adult psychiatry and eating disorders. In his current role he is the pharmacy lead for clinical trials and sits on various local governance groups involved with writing guidelines on the use and monitoring of mental health drugs.
