

Chronic Fatigue Syndrome/ME—The Past, The Present, The Future.

Learn from what has gone before, what we do now and where we want to go

Tuesday 3 November 2020

Virtual Event via Zoom

12.00pm Registration and Lunch , 12.30pm Welcome and 4.30pm, Close

CFS/ME is a condition which harbours more opinions than facts. Misunderstandings about the condition continue to prevent patients from being able to access appropriate care. The NICE guidelines of 2007 are in the process of being revised. Research is leading to advancements in our understanding of the mechanisms which underlay the symptoms of CFS/ME and may also give clues to the causes of fatigue in other conditions. This talk aims to give an opportunity to reflect on the history of this condition and how it has been approached previously. We will update you on what services do currently both in terms of the diagnostic process and also approaches to therapy. We will then collectively look forward to consider what the future provision of care for people with CFS/ME should look like.

After attending this course delegate will be able to:

- Understand the progress that has been made in our understanding of the condition
- Feel more confident to recognise CFS/ME and distinguish it from other conditions which cause significant fatigue
- Use some basic strategies to help patients manage fatigue symptoms

About our speakers:

Dr Vikki McKeever, has been an NHS GP for 20 years. For the last 7 years she has also worked as a GP with a specialist interest in CFS/ME in both Leeds and York. Her CFS/ME work is primarily involved in the diagnostic end of the CFS/ME services seeing patients with complex medical histories and symptom presentation. She is an executive member of BACME (British Association for CFS/ME professionals) involved in the development of training in the field of CFS/ME and has presented a number of training events locally.

Deborah Taylor DipCOT, MSc, has been an Occupational Therapist for over 25 years and has worked in a range of settings and sectors including the NHS, Third Sector, Social Enterprise and Independently. Her current role over the last 7 years is as Clinical Lead for the Therapy Team in a Specialist NHS Chronic Fatigue/ME Service based at Seacroft Hospital, Leeds. It provides mainly out-patient treatment to people across the West Yorkshire area. Her role is half clinical but also leading, supervising and supporting the team of therapists to deliver the best evidenced-based treatment in groups and individually working with a diverse range of function and expectations within the patient population. She oversees the screening of the referrals and decisions about pathway and formulation following patient presentation as part of the multidisciplinary team. Deborah understands the importance for all stakeholders to receive timely and effective interventions and rehabilitation to promote recovery, sustained occupational roles, well-being and management strategies. Deborah is also dedicated to promoting service user and carer involvement and is also undertaking Coaching Training.
