

Masterclass: Parkinson's Disease: The Spectrum of Psychiatric and Physical Problems

Wednesday 26 January 2022

The Met Hotel, King Street, Leeds, LS1 2HQ

12.00pm Lunch & Registration, 12.30pm Welcome and 4.30pm Close

Parkinsonian syndromes provide an important overlap for old age psychiatry and geriatric medicine. Parkinson's disease itself has a high prevalence of depression, dementia and psychosis; many psychiatric medications have extra-pyramidal side-effects; cerebrovascular disease may cause both dementia and Parkinsonism and also has a high prevalence of depression. Furthermore, there is a complex interaction between anti-parkinsonian medications and many drugs commonly prescribed in psychiatry. The protean manifestations of Parkinson's disease necessitate a close liaison between the two specialties so that shared care may be of the highest possible standard.

After attending this course you will be able to:

- Identify if your patient could have a Parkinsonian syndrome.
- Appreciate how the motor, non motor and psychiatric aspects of Parkinson's inter relate
- Understand the difficulties faced by Parkinson's patients and the complexities of managing their symptoms
- Be aware of the risks and benefits of Parkinson's medications

About our speaker:

Dr Duncan Forsyth joined Addenbrooke's hospital as consultant geriatrician in 1990. As well as developing local services for Parkinson's disease, he is a mentor on the National Parkinson's Academy. He also has an interest in improving the detection and management of delirium, and the better management of dementia within an acute hospital setting. In 2010, he set up a delirium unit at Addenbrooke's and is the local lead for implementing NICE delirium guidelines. He has held key regional and national roles with the British Geriatrics Society (BGS) and has been a member of working parties with the Royal College of Physicians and the Royal College of Psychiatrists.
