Thursday 28—Friday 29 November 2019

Assessing and Managing the Risk of Sexual Violence

The Met Hotel, King Street, Leeds, LS1 2HQ

9am Registration, 9.30am Welcome and 4.30pm, Close (Both Days)

Led by Dr Helen Miles, this two day course will teach you to use the Risk for Sexual Violence Protocol. You will study the professional judgement approach of assessing the risk of sexual violence. You will learn to create plans to prevent sexual violence, studying two practice cases. You will assess the risk an individual poses of sexual offending for a number of different contexts, such as preparing reports for sentencing, making decisions about the management of mentally disordered offenders, including restricted patients, and managing sexual offenders in the community through Multi-Agency Public Protection Arrangements.

The course will introduce you to the Structured Professional Judgement method of risk assessment and will teach how to undertake an RSVP assessment specifically.

This course aims to provide delegates with:

- The ability to have a compressive overview of sexual violence risk assessment
- Be able to use the RSVP to assess and manage sexual violence risk
