About this course

Addiction is common and often leads to harmful consequences, with profound effects on the person, their family, community and society. It is important to assess for substance misuse disorders and non-drug addiction, as there are evidence-based biopsychosocial interventions that improve outcomes in these groups of patients.

Course Objectives

After attending this course you will be able to:

- Develop an understanding of the presentation of common substance misuse disorders and non-drug addictions
- Feel confident in completing thorough assessments of common substance misuse disorders and non-drug addictions
- Be aware of the biopsychosocial management options for non-specialist and specialist management of common substance misuse disorders and non-drug addictions

About our speaker

John joined Leeds and York Partnership NHS Foundation Trust in 2022 and works as a full-time consultant treating gambling addiction in the Northern Gambling Service, and drug and alcohol addiction in Forward Leeds. He has an interest in medical education and teaches and supervises medical students at the University of Leeds Medical School.

Dr Mayet completed psychiatry training at the Maudsley hospital and has been working on addictions research, clinical, teaching or policy since 2001. Dr Mayet provides clinical leadership to the East Riding Partnership (ERP) community addictions service and has experience of working across a variety of addiction settings. Dr Mayet teaches and trains medical students at Hull York Medical School, postgraduate doctors, and other healthcare professionals on addictions. Dr Mayet is actively involved with addictions research and has a variety of publications and assisted guideline development with NICE and WHO publications
